

City Asked to Take Over Health Center

SHIRLEY CALHOUN
Job conduct under fire

By FRANK LAPIERRE
A majority of the Board of Directors of the Guadalupe Health Center in Daly City Monday asked the city to take over operation of the center in the wake of alleged misconduct charges against the center's acting director, Shirley Calhoun.

Nine of the Board's 17 members petitioned City Manager David Rowe for the takeover.

The action comes in the face of mounting charges of malfeasance of office boiling up around Calhoun, alias Shirley Bradford.

Staff members and center directors, along with citizens, allege Calhoun overstepped her authority in hiring and firing of personnel at the center; and that she has signed checks and entered into contracts without board approval.

Monday, Ms. Calhoun, who has been unavailable to the media since last week, talked to The Post.

She said she possesses two separate Social Security cards, one issued to Shirley Calhoun and the other to Shirley Bradford.

Ms. Calhoun said the dual identities were used, because she "wants to take out my own taxes." In some cases she prefers to use her maiden name, "Bradford," while at other times, she uses "Calhoun," she said.

A third name possibly used by Calhoun-Bradford was discovered Monday.

It is that of Shirley Rae Mann, who matches Calhoun-Bradford's description and has a drivers license issued to the same El Sobrante address as the center's director.

Ms. Calhoun said Shirley Rae Mann is "my cousin who shared the apartment with me."

Mann still lives in El Sobrante, but she now lives in San Jose, she said.

There has been no wrongdoing on her part, Ms. Calhoun said.

In fact, loose bookkeeping procedures and failure to adhere to previous recommendations by consultants over the past three years (she has only been there for some two months) have placed the center in the hazardous position it finds itself in today, she explained.

Reading from a four-page press release, Ms. Calhoun explained why Ina Ramsay was hired as acting fiscal officer, and the difficulty encountered in getting Ms. Ramsay authorization to sign checks that would be honored by the Bank of America, Daly City branch.

Some five checks signed by Ms. Ramsay were turned back by the Bank of America after the center's treasurer, Maria Borrego, sent a letter to bank manager Madeline Ongwarsky noting Ms. Ramsay was not authorized to sign checks.

The center's rules stipulate that at least two signatures must be on every check issued.

Ms. Calhoun said Borrego had at first signed a signature authorization card for Ms. Ramsay, along with two other center officers, and later reneged on the signature card to the bank.

Jinni Bartolome, chairperson of the center's Board of Directors, said she had personally delivered the signature card to Ms. Borrego.

Ina Ramsay was hired without board approval.

Ramsay was in the employ of the Lucien D'Haiti Consulting Service of Oakland, Teresa Greene, the firm's president, explained.

Ramsay left the D'Haiti agency to accept the post with the center.

Although Ms. Ramsay has not been appointed by the Health Center Board as permanent fiscal officer, she is being paid as a "regular" full-time employee of the health center.

The D'Haiti firm is now conducting a study at the center under a one month, $12,000 contract signed by Calhoun — also without prior Board approval.

In the matter of the D'Haiti contract, the board's minutes of some six weeks ago reflect Ms. Calhoun merely was authorized to negotiate with the firm.

It made no mention of entering into a contract.

Ms. Bartolome said the practice of hiring "interim personnel" by the center director without board approval in an emergency "is not unusual."

This was done in order not to interrupt the normal routine of the center in paying its bills, Ms. Bartolome explained.

Current Program Defended

More Civil Defense Spending Is Opposed

Should Daly City expand its present wartime civil defense preparedness agency in the face of today's continually changing political scene, which includes detente with World Powers? City Manager David Rowe says he doesn't think so — that establishment of a full-time civil defense director and staff would be a waste of taxpayers' money.

Rowe recommended recently that the City Council not adopt programs presented by state and federal civil defense agencies.

"As noted, the city is adequately prepared and capable of handling most all disaster situations," Rowe explained.

The report conducted by the state and federal agencies suggested the city hire a number of additional personnel to specifically handle disaster planning "and to a great extent, to war-caused disasters," Rowe said.

Rowe is the city's disaster chief in the event of an emergency.

He said the city has well-stocked emergency shelters throughout the city.

Plans to handle natural disasters, such as flooding, earthquakes and fires are "more than adequate," he said.

To hire additional personnel for this purpose would be a "complete and foolish waste of money."

On Site Assistance (OSA) has been described by the government outlines as a "cooperative evaluation process" to help development of a civil defense program.

"Upon selection of a community to receive this process, a Defense Civil Preparedness Agency (DCPA) and California Office of Emergency Services (OES) decision, it is applied by a city-county-state-federal report explained.

This team makes a joint assessment of a community's existing program and follows up with recommendations for improvements and joint agreements needed to take what it called "reasonable follow-up actions to effect these improvements."

The state and federal staff assistance is at no cost to a city and is designed to "help a city help itself."

This OSA process requires that a civil preparedness program within a city be viewed as a "total preparedness effort."

This would include emergency operating centers, shelters, warnings and communications.

But Rowe doesn't think the city needs a siren alarm system to warn people in the event of a nuclear air attack.

Present systems — radio and television — are sufficient to inform people of the remote possibility of such an attack, Rowe feels.

OSA was made available to all San Mateo County cities through their participation in the San Francisco Bay Area Earthquake Response Plan, it was explained.

A joint team was formed with representatives of state-county-federal agencies, and a city representative was included as a member.

JESD Responds to Federal Charges

The Jefferson Elementary School District's Board of Trustees has responded to federal allegations it failed to comply with desegregation provisions of its $775,000 Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) grant.

It has complied with provisions contained in its original application the board stated, but could not initiate provisions of a "revised" plan, because "no other plan or revisions to the plan approved on Dec. 5, 1973, has been submitted to the Board of Trustees for consideration or approval."

The statement, contained in a thick packet delivered to Dr. Edward Aguirre, regional IX commissioner of the Office of Education in San Francisco, claimed that the district had not learned until a year later that there had been a revision of the 1973 proposal.

The district pointed out that district files contain correspondence in which the Office of Civil Rights announced approval of the Dec. 5, 1973 proposal.

District Supt. Herbert Hemington said the district has moved pupils and teachers and changed some school locations in line with the original, approved application to arrest "minority isolation" and otherwise aid minorities in the district's schools.

Hemington said the district "is attempting to review the actions of its employees who were involved in ESAA related activities between Dec. 5, 1973 and Jan. 16, 1974, to ascertain what happened during that period."

Some time later, the youth sought treatment at Kaiser Hospital on El Camino Real. He was treated and released to the custody of his father, police said.

SSF Youth Wounded

A 16-year-old South San Francisco youth was treated at Kaiser Hospital Monday for a gunshot wound in his right shoulder.

Police said they are investigating the circumstances surrounding the incident, because a resident of Valencia Drive had reported earlier firing one shot at a man allegedly attempting to enter his home.

Beviaqua got up and saw a man cross the street and disappear around the corner. Moments later, the man reappeared and came toward the Beviaqua home. While Mrs. Beviaqua notified the authorities, police said, Beviaqua got a small handgun from another room. He watched the man climb a fence adjacent to the side of his house, and as the man attempted entry through a sliding glass door, Beviaqua fired one shot, according to police.

Some time later, the youth sought treatment at Kaiser Hospital on El Camino Real. He was treated and released to the custody of his father, police said.

PARAMEDICS PERFORM RESCUE

Injured motorcycle rider Tim Postels, 21, a Coast Guardsman, receives on-the-spot emergency care from a South San Francisco "paramedic" and an ambulance attendant after a collision on San Francisco Airport's North Access Road on Sunday.

Auto, Cycle Collide; SSF Paramedics Called

A U.S. Coast Guardsman is in satisfactory condition today at Letterman Hospital in San Francisco suffering from a leg injury sustained in a collision in South San Francisco Sunday.

The South San Francisco paramedic team was called to the scene of the motorcycle-automobile collision at South Airport Boulevard and Pan American Road.

The paramedics treated Tim Postels, 21, the motorcycle driver, and rushed him to Kaiser Hospital.

According to a California Highway Patrol spokesman, Postels turned off South Airport and onto Pan American Road at about 5 p.m. The CHP spokesman said Postels accelerated into a turn and swerved over the double yellow line into the left lane colliding with a car being driven by Cherie Faria, 26, of Contra Costa.

A South San Francisco policeman, patrolling an area nearby stopped to investigate. He called the CHP, which has jurisdiction of the area of the accident, and they notified the paramedic unit.

Rescue I, manned by two paramedics, rushed to the scene.

The paramedics found Postels lying on his back complaining of pain in his left leg. One paramedic radioed a Kaiser Hospital emergency room physician, who instructed the team to apply an IV and to bandage and splinter the injured leg.

An ambulance arrived at the scene, and the paramedics accompanied Postels to Kaiser.

He was treated at Kaiser, then transferred to Letterman Hospital in San Francisco.

Miss Faria, was uninjured in the accident.

High Speed Chase: 2 Held

Two men wanted in connection with two armed robberies in the North County Monday were arrested following a brief, but harrowing high speed car chase Monday afternoon.

Daly City police officers Fred Holewinski and Rich Miller spotted the pair speeding toward San Francisco near the corner of John Daly Avenue and Junipero Serra Boulevard about 3:45 p.m. and gave chase.

Minutes later, police sergeant Tom Reese and officer James McHenry joined the pursuit northbound toward San Francisco along the Junipero Serra Freeway.

The car sped off the Geneva off-ramp of the freeway and struck a private car, which, in turn, touched off a chain reaction involving four other cars at the intersection of Geneva and San Jose Avenues.

There was only one minor injury reported, police said.

The car with the two men continued down Geneva and spun into a utility pole at Cayuga and Geneva Avenues, police said.

Police said the pair fled the demolished car and began pounding on doors in the neighborhood, apparently seeking a hiding place.

Instead, residents of the area pointed out the men to police, Sgt. Reese said.

Two ski masks, several hundred dollars in cash, and a small .22 caliber revolver were recovered at the scene of the arrests, Reese said.

The gun had been thrown onto a nearby roof, police said.

Arrested as they hid in a clump of bushes were James Adams Hall, 18, and Charles Essick, 19, both of San Francisco.

Police allege the pair first held up Skip's Sporting Goods Store in the Bayhill Shopping Center, San Bruno, and fled after with some $250 in cash.

An all-points bulletin was issued for a brown Mustang headed for San Francisco.

Minutes later, two men matching the robber's description and driving a brown Mustang allegedly held up the London Fish & Chips restaurant on Junipero Serra Blvd., Daly City and fled with $150 in cash, police said.

The car was later reported stolen from a San Francisco City College professor, police said.

'Ticky-Tacky' Housing Charged

The Daly City council went through a lengthy agenda in near record time Monday.

Eighteen business matters included on the agenda were disposed of quickly.

However, a snag came during public appearances when an argument developed between a resident and the council concerning development of San Bruno Mountain and its environs.

Two weeks ago, Del Schembari, leader of an environmentalist group calling itself the "Daly City Chapter Save San Bruno Mountain," submitted a petition to the council asking them to let the mountain development be studied by the Association of Bay Area Government (ABAG).

At that time, Mayor McRobert Stewart said he would reply to numerous questions and accusations, lodged by Schembari, in a letter.

Monday, Schembari said he had not as yet received Stewart's letter.

Stewart said "You'll get the letter — within two weeks."

Schembari also voiced concern about the development of Blossom Valley, making reference to the city's "ticky-tacky" housing, and charging the council with perpetuating this type development by allowing the "wall-to-wall housing in Blossom Valley" to proceed.

Schembari thinks the Blossom Valley development (185 single family dwellings) should be viewed as part of the entire mountain development.

Councilman William Schumacher told Schembari he had long opposed continued construction of apartments in the city.

But Blossom Valley development is different, he said. It was the first time "in a long time" a developer has decided to put in family homes, instead of apartments, Schumacher said.

Stewart voiced his dislike of Schembari's use of the "ticky-tacky" reference, pointing out that after the war, Daly City provided much-needed housing for veterans.

"Where else could they have gone and bought a house?" Stewart responded.

"We must think of the present... protect our open space," Schembari said.

In other action, Schumacher voiced concern about the San Mateo County Transit Board's possible intent to push for separate bus lines in the county's cities, instead of a totally integrated plan.

He said a federated plan "would defeat the purpose" and violate "the intent of the voters" if approved by the Board, which meets Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Redwood City supervisors chambers.

Two weeks ago, the Daly City Council sent a resolution asking for the integrated system and not a federated system to the Transit Board, Councilman Victor Kyniak said.

Dan Dailey

Actor Dan Dailey Arrested

Hollywood movie and television star Dan Dailey was arrested at San Francisco International Airport Saturday after he allegedly struck an airline passenger agent who refused to let him board a PSA flight for Los Angeles.

Dailey, 59, who gave his residence as Malibu, was booked at San Mateo County Jail on charges of assault, battery and intoxication.

Everett A. Hemenway, 27, of Pacifica, a passenger service supervisor for PSA, informed Sheriff's Deputies Michael Peck and Ray Richardson that he declined to let Dailey board the flight at 5:15 p.m. because the actor appeared intoxicated. (Federal Aviation Administration regulations prohibit permitting intoxicated persons to board an airliner.)

Hemenway said that Dailey twice tried to board the aircraft, but appeared mollified when it was explained why he couldn't be allowed on the plane.

The service supervisor stated he left his position a short time later and was walking along the terminal pier when he noticed Dailey sitting in a chair.

As he passed the chair, Hemenway told the deputies, Dailey stood up, called him an "SOB" and hit him in the face with his right fist, knocking off his glasses and causing a cut on the bridge of the nose.

Hemenway said Dailey swung a second time, but he managed to avoid the punch and push him away attempting to calm down the actor.

Peck reported that it was intended to merely cite Dailey after Hemenway performed a citizen's arrest.

However, he said, it was decided to book the actor after he spontaneously told the deputies:

"I'll kill him if I ever see him again. How dare he do that to me. I knocked the B—d on his a—, and I'm glad I did it, and I'll do it again if I ever see him."

Dailey was booked at the county jail at 8 p.m. and released on his own recognizance at 12:05 a.m. Sunday, to appear in Northern District Municipal Court April 1 at 9 a.m.

When the deputies reached the scene, they said a Hillsborough man at whose home Dailey had been staying was years on the board, disputed this. "We did not improvise. We went by the rules. And the rules say the Board of Directors must approve these things," Portillo said.

Ms. Calhoun also said stories being circulated that she does not possess a Masters Degree in Public Health Administration, as outlined in her resume for the job, was false.

She does, in fact, have credits for a Masters Degree and once she pays a nominal fee, the University of California, Berkeley will send her the certificate attesting to this fact, she said.

But the university's dean of registrars, Clinton C. Gilliam, in a letter to an unidentified member of the center staff dated Feb. 7, 1975, said Ms. Calhoun has only a Bachelor of Arts degree, with a major in drama and minor in public health.

Ms. Calhoun and Ms. Bartolome expressed concern that last Friday three directors, whom she identified as Treasurer Maria Borrego, Oscar Perez and Fernando Cordero, took all the center's records.

"Without those records we cannot operate. We are at a standstill," Ms. Calhoun said.

Ms. Bartolome said she intended to file a theft report.

The Post learned that the files are in the possession of the Daly City Police Department.

An outside auditor is reviewing the massive data, however there is no indication of any wrongdoing thus far.

Detective Lt. Jim Doran refused comment on the status of the records.

Broken Back

A 16-year-old San Leandro boy suffered a broken back in a fall from a horse at the Cow Palace Saturday and was reported in good condition today at Mary's Help Hospital.

Michael Johnson, 16, of 14381 Trinidad Road, San Leandro was participating in events in the Junior Grand National Livestock Show when the accident occurred about 8:30 p.m.

Defense

(Continued from Page 1) acting director, department of Community Development, were briefed on the program by James M. Knight, Federal representative of the DCPA Region Seven.

In-depth discussions on natural disasters and nuclear attack preparedness were conducted with Rowe and Fleming, Knight reported.

The report, noting Daly City is built on the San Andreas Fault, said "Earthquake damage is highly probable with difficulty of ingress or egress to affected areas a distinct possibility."

Rowe said he plans to rework the outline to put emphasis on natural disasters and less on wartime disaster causes.

Fire and police departments are "thoroughly aware" of their duties during a natural disaster, such as fire, flooding or aircraft crash within the city, Rowe said.

In commenting generally on the status of the city's disaster planning, the report noted that Daly City "has developed a response capability for a small to medium disaster; but it is less able to cope with a large disaster because of the need for establishment of priorities and coordination of resources." — Frank LaPierre

Teachers Rap Sabbatical Leave Policy

Concerned teachers turned out in droves March 18 when the Jefferson Union High School District Board of Trustees met to discuss the possibility of discontinuing sabbatical leaves.

Harold C. Tonini, assistant superintendent-personnel, reported that the cost of replacing 11 teachers who could be granted sabbaticals would be in excess of $28,000. In addition, fringe benefit payments for teachers on sabbaticals and for their replacements would boost the figure by another $10,000. Tonini said such an expense would strain the district's budget.

"We're going to have money difficulties," he said. "I think money is going to be the biggest problem boards are going to have for the next few years."

The board passed a motion at a board meeting last November that said sabbatical leave applications would be accepted with the understanding that leaves might not be granted for financial reasons. And District Supt. Edward D. Morgan recommended in a letter dated March 18, 1975, that no sabbaticals be granted for the 1975-76 school year.

Louis Silberman, chairman of the Certificated Employees Council, said a petition requesting that a moratorium not be placed on sabbatical leaves had been signed by 98 per cent of the district's teachers.

"Sabbatical leaves in this district are part of the financial package granted to all teachers," Silberman said.

The board will vote in April whether to grant sab-baticals for the 1975-76 school year at the April 1 board meeting.

In other action, the board approved a nearly $2 million remodeling and addition project at Serramonte and Terra Nova High Schools.

The most expensive part of the project will be construction of a $751,755 physical education facility addition at Serramonte High School. The boys' and girls' locker rooms will be expanded and a small exercise room (23x23) and an auxiliary gymnasium (55x88) will be built.

Sixty per cent of the construction projects at both schools will be funded by city bonds; the remainder by the school district.

The joint California Teachers Association and American Federation of Teachers Committee of Terra Nova High School presented a grievance against the school's principal, Thanos Panagoulas.

The committee spokespersons said Panagoulas has refused to meet with the committee. Silberman asked that the board instruct Panagoulas to immediately answer requests for a meeting.

Panagoulas said he has refused to meet with the committee because "It is an ad hoc committee and hasn't been recognized by the board or the principal."

"Seventy per cent of the teachers at Terra Nova have duly elected this committee," said Silberman. "If Mr. Panagoulas denies access to this committee, he denies access to 70 per cent of his faculty."

John H. Sloane, president of the board, said the grievance was a personnel matter because it was directed at an individual, Panagoulas, and best would be handled in executive session.

According to the Brown Act, personnel matters should be taken up in executive sessions behind closed doors.

Sewer Fee Survey Approved

Pacifica City Council weathered a scattering of protests March 18 and hired Consoer & Townsend to determine how much residences and businesses should be charged for sewer services.

The council hopes that the study will be completed in time to place the new charges on the 1975-76 tax rolls. Presently, each home is charged a flat fee, $40 a year. Most businesses must pay $60.

Councilmen scrapped the bottom of their reserves barrel to pay an unbudgeted $21,500 to the firm, which designed the recently completed sewer treatment plant.

The study is being undertaken as a result of a protest of current fees made last year, when councilmen increased the fee from $18 to $40 for homeowners and from $27 to $60 for most businesses.

The city appointed a committee which recommended last week that fees be set on the basis of bedrooms for homes, and plumbing fixtures and strength of sewage of businesses. A Chamber of Commerce committee recommended hiring a consultant.

The city was forced to enact the new charges last year when the Environmental Protection Agency, in charge of sewer plant grants, decreed that cities such as Pacifica must enact a users' fee.

The Pacifica Chamber of Commerce, last year, protested that the city's sewer charges were unfair because they were not based on actual use of the sewage plant. City officials were unable to justify adequately why they charged homeowners, $40, and most businesses, $60, and thus authorized a study to be conducted.

Council member Janice Fulford said she was concerned about spending $21,500 without opening bids on the study. City Manager Don Weidner replied bids are not required in hiring a professional service.

In other matters, the council voted to form a seven-person committee to screen applicants for architect of Pacifica's civic center. The committee will be composed of former councilman Harlan Minshew, John McCoy, Ken Grobman and the chairmen of the Planning Commission, Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission, Hillside Protection Board and the Highway Safety and Transportation Committee.

Grobman, a planning commissioner, is a member of an architectural firm, which is not bidding on the project.

SSF Residents Oppose Cafe

Opposition from a handful of South San Francisco residents was voiced this week to the Daily City Planning Commission concerning construction of a restaurant and a landscaped retaining wall in an area bordering both cities.

Members of the Winston Manor Homeowners Association told the planning commission the area above them — specifically Serramonte and Crown Colony — has been already saturated with homes and apartments.

During rainstorms, mud slides are triggered, causing serious erosion.

George Menzoian, representing the developer of the site, Le-Jo, Inc., at the corner of Highway 280 and Hickey Blvd., said a landscaped retaining wall with a lesser slope could be built to stop this erosion.

Menzoian contemplated building the wall in "staggered steps" and then planting trees, shrubs and flowers on the tiers, similar to the award-winning landscaped retaining wall along IR 280 in San Francisco.

But one homeowner, Mrs. Bethel Davies, mother of four, and vice president of the Winston Manor Homeowners group, reportedly said the wall would be an attraction for children to climb.

Presently, there is a steeper, eroded hillside which homeowners have asked to have repaired and improved in recent years.

The property is about two acres in size. Menzoian is now trying to purchase an adjacent, smaller piece of property from the State, it was learned.

The property is zoned R-1. Planners were asked to rezone the parcels to C-1 to allow for building of the restaurant.

When the entire Serramonte area was originally annexed to Daly City it was zoned for residential use. In recent years the parcels east of IR 280 (Junipero Serra Freeway) have been changed to permit construction of service stations and apartments.

Menzoian's land is the last sliver of R-1 zoned property remaining.

The real estate agent hesitated to make public the name of the restaurant proposed for the site. However, he did say it was "in the upper class and definitely not one of those drive-in chain operations."

He said residents of Winston Manor would be unable to see the restaurant, because it would be above them and screened by fast-growing trees and shrubs.

The commission tabled the matter, pending completion of a revised environment impact report.

It was scheduled to be discussed further at the commission's April 8 meeting at City Hall.

No-Growth Advocates Rapped by Developer

The chief spokesman for the developer of San Bruno Mountain Thursday castigated environmentalists, who stand by no-growth policies while people without work and housing "wonder where their next meal is coming from."

Robert L. Follett, who has been saturating San Mateo County with public talks on development of a community on the 3,600 acre undeveloped mountain, Thursday changed his "sell" tactics before the Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce.

Instead of pointing out park and open space plans for the mountain, protection of the environment by using advanced methods of transportation with the complex; and, recreational activities available to the some-day 22,500-person population, Follett lambasted the multitude of "protection agencies" in existence today.

"At the state level in California we have the State Lands Commission, Water Resources Control Board, Division of Highways and its new parent, The Department of Transportation, and the Department of Fish and Game," Follett said.

In addition, Follett said, there are regional and local agencies — all dealing with what a private property owner can or cannot do with his land.

Follett told the Chamber he wanted to "get down to the root causes of the trauma that all of us in the land development and home-building business are going through these days."

He said the proliferation of "more and bigger agencies" is responsible for private land owners losing their rights to influence government decisions.

"You no longer can go to your local City Council to complain about certain matters when career government employees already have told you what you must or can't do," Follett said.

And while these "career government employees" are well-educated, young and highly motivated, Follett believes they have not had the necessary expertise gained from working in private enterprise.

There are now a number of environmental control agencies which have decision-making powers and taxing powers, but are not controlled directly by locally elected officials, Follett said.

"Ecology remains popular at the polls, even overriding such traditional goals as improvement in our standard of living, full employment, growth, development and prosperity," Follett said.

"Having attained a measure of material wealth, the middle class majority often seems to have forgotten what made it all possible, as it now seeks a life-style emphasizing better education, more personal freedoms and improvement of the environment."

Follett fears new and tougher ecology legislation is forthcoming.

He believes that lack of economic education of the public, coupled with more new legislation dealing with this issue, will strip private landowners of their remaining property rights.

"A person without a job and housing is not so likely to enthuse about the clean air over his head. He wants to know where his next meal is coming from," Follett said.

Red Cross Month in Colma Proclaimed

Mayor of the Town of Colma, Earl H. Taylor, has officially proclaimed the month of March as American Red Cross month in the Town of Colma.

Recognizing "the importance of the American Red Cross in our community," the proclamation cites Red Cross First Aid and Water Safety Programs, Disaster Services, Service to Military Families, Nursing and Health Programs, Youth Service Programs and the numerous opportunities provided for volunteer service by community residents.

The proclamation was received by Lou Celentano, a South San Francisco resident and active volunteer in the Red Cross South San Francisco Service Center.

Sickle Cell Anemia Test Set in JESD

A pilot program of testing sickle cell and general anemia at Benjamin Franklin Intermediate School was approved by the Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustees last Wednesday.

Principal Pete Hansen said the resources and a mobile testing unit of Sickle Cell Anemia Research and Education, Inc., would be used.

Student and parent participation would be voluntary.

The tests will be free, Hansen said.

In a paper accompanying Hansen's request, school nurse Bett Boykin stated:

"The sickle cell trait (without the disease) can be identified and the family informed. This has significance genetically and influences decisions to be made about future children. General anemia is not uncommon in teenagers, especially girls."

In other business, the board:

— At the urging of the Jefferson Council of PTAs, endorsed the concept of each child in the district be afforded the opportunity to participate in the outdoor education program.

— Denied a request from Benjamin Franklin art teacher Dennis G. Carr for a five-day leave of absence with pay to attend the International Reading Conference May 12-16 in New York.

Adoption Expected By April

SSF Studies Condominium Law Change

Aware of the increasing popularity of condominiums in suburban areas, the South San Francisco City Council March 18 reviewed proposed regulations for condominium conversion and building.

The regulations proposed by the Planning Commission would require new condominiums and apartments converted into condominiums to meet existing health and safety codes. (A 10-year-old apartment building, for example, could not be converted into a condominium, unless the building met current health and safety codes.)

Councilman F. Frank Mammimi suggested that conversion be limited to newer buildings that, with few modifications, would meet the current code requirements.

"Don't have people waste their time, energy and money when you know darn well if the building was built before 1965, it's not economically going to meet the requirements," said Mammimi.

"I don't think it's the job of this council to be concerned about economic problems for Realtors," said Mayor Terry J. Mirri.

"We should be concerned with safety standards," he continued. "A renter can move out of an apartment, but problems are more complex for condominium owners."

Mammimi said strict health and safety code regulations will discourage construction and building of condominiums and deprive people who can't afford to buy houses of the opportunity to buy condominiums.

"Our young people are looking for places to live in that they can say 'we own'," said Mammimi. "The only way you can put them in a position to be able to buy is to let them buy condominiums. But, if you force them into living in apartments, all they've got at the end of 24 months is 24 rent receipts."

City Manager Edward G. Alario suggested that an information sheet be prepared explaining the code requirements for condominium conversion. Real estate agents individually then could decide on the feasibility of conversion. His suggestion was well received by the other council members.

Richard A. Battaglia, mayor, said that in order to protect the public, conversion should not be too simple. He expressed the fear that unscrupulous landlords might try to get rid of undesirable apartments by "converting" them into condominiums and selling them.

The Planning Commission recommendation would require landlords to notify renters of impending conversion 90 days in advance and pay moving expenses within the Bay Area.

Vice Mayor Leo Padreddi said landlords should not be required to pay moving expenses, and an informal vote showed the other council members agreed.

The City Council is expected to adopt the condominium regulations, with only minor changes, by April.

A LONG LIFE?

Whether she reads palms, gazes into her crystal ball or reads tea leaves, Gina Conti will certainly give one something to think about as the fortune teller in Garden Village's PTA Carnival. The fund raising event will be held in the school's multi-use room April 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Along with the usual Carnival events will be some unusual happenings: a sponge throw, a Boutique Booth with homemade items, a jail, and a "jelly bean guessing contest with a large stuffed St. Bernard dog as the prize for the closest guess. Marie Farnsworth (right) is chairperson of the event.

Coast Teachers
Ask Wage Boost

Laguna Salada teachers asked for a cost of living pay increase at Thursday night's meeting, as part of a 19-item package.

The request came from the Certificated Employees Council, representing both the Laguna Salada Education Association, and the smaller Laguna Salada Federation of Teachers.

Erika Rigling, president of the LSEA, told the trustees that "Seven (items) deal specifically with student welfare, such as one calling for increasing specialists and special services personnel to meet the students' needs better, and another establishing a student referral procedure for those students needing extra attention."

She added that two items deal with teacher welfare and the other 10 affect both teachers and students.

The request, she said, came after several weeks of intensive study, including an Instructional Needs Assessment survey developed by the national Education Association to "identify strengths and weaknesses in the educational program."

Requests included:
—Class size limits of 25 for grades K-3, 27 for 4-6, and 30 for 7-8 homerooms.

—Preparation Period for teachers in grades 4-6.

—Experience increments for the 15th and 21st years of teachers. There already is one for the 18th year.

—Early retirement plan.

—Teachers shall have the option of being paid in 10 installments rather than 12.

—Materials illustrating contributions of minorities shall be made available to all district employees.

—Sabbatical leave policy shall be reinstated.

—No device shall be installed in any classroom by which a person could listen to or record class discussion without consent of the teacher.

There are a total of 340 certificated personnel, including about 24 administrators, the latter of whom have not yet presented their proposals.

Citizens may be able to give their opinions on the proposals at the April 3 meeting, after which trustees will make their response.

Representatives of the approximately 200 classified employees — non-teaching workers such as cooks, custodians, secretaries and bus drivers — made their salary requests at Tuesday night's meeting of the Laguna Salada Personnel Board. The board will negotiate with the Laguna Salada California School Employees Association, and then make a recommendation to the board.

The CSEA's request was for a 15 per cent pay increase, cutting working hours from 40 to 37½ hours with no pay cut; adding a sixth step to the salary scale; medical coverage for retired employees; and fully paid insurance for life, income protection, vision, medical and dental needs.

A very busy holiday week will continue tomorrow when the Friends of the Daly City Library meet at 10 a.m. to hear Joyce Lancaster Wilson review her book for children, "The Four Kings of the Forest".

Mrs. Wilson, who has garnered 20 years of expertise with children while she taught nursery school, has produced a delightful story illustrated with her own linoleum cuts and the total effect is a work of art to be enjoyed by young and old alike.

As always, the public is invited to enjoy the review which will be held in the Coral Room of the Westlake library. A coffee hour will precede the review, and a no-host luncheon, honoring the speaker, will follow the review at the Boars Head restaurant in Serramonte.

The program is arranged by Mrs. H. C. Kincaid and the hospitality hour is directed by Mrs. Klaus Tschorsning.

Members are reminded that it is time to renew their memberships and Mrs. William Bagnall, membership chairwoman, will begin her drive for renewals and new memberships this month.

NEXT WEDNESDAY is Day at the Races Day — let's hope that all the rains have long since departed — for the members of the Mary's Help Hospital Guild.

Mrs. Frank Falconi, 756-8368, Mrs. Howard Poblitz, 756-6761, and Mrs. Frank Lawson, are available today only to provide interested persons with ticket information. Husbands and friends of the guild members are invited to join in the fun at Golden Gate Fields.

The tickets, which cost $10 per person, include admission to the Turf Club and a lovely luncheon served in the Terrace Room. Persons wishing to ride the chartered bus may do so for an additional $2. The bus will leave from 307 South Mayfair at 11:15 a.m. and return following the races.

This annual event is a fund raising effort to assist the guild with its programs in support of Mary's Help Hospital.

Another of the guild's undertakings is the annual Christmas Boutique and a call for donations to the stock of materials for that sale has been issued by Mrs. Millie Dunow and Mrs. Virginia Stranghellini. Needed are old yarns, costume jewelry, scraps of material, left over yards and ceramic containers.

Persons wishing to donate items may leave them at the information desk in the hospital foyer or at the office of Mrs. Mary McCoy.

NEXT WEDNESDAY evening Father Kenan Osborne, the president and Dean of the Franciscan School of Theology, the chairman of the Commission of Catholic Theological Society of America on Renewal of the Sacraments of Penance and the editor of a book on the sacrament of penance, will offer the first in a series of four classes he will be teaching under the sponsorship of the Congregation of St. Andrew's in Daly City.

Father Osborne's class, to be entitled "The Sacrament of Forgiveness: A Contemporary Look at Penance," will be given each Wednesday evening between 8 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. in the St. Andrew's Parish Center, 45 St. Francis Square.

Anyone interested in attending the classes is asked to call 992-4577 or 756-3330 for registration information.

ALBERTO CEFFALO, the assistant cubmaster of South San Francisco's Cub pack 294 and the newly named chairman of the Northern district's Cuboree, has announced that the date for this annual competition will be Aug. 16.

The Cuboree will include athletic competition for all the cubs in the Northern district and will be held in conjunction with a giant picnic for all participating cubs and their families.

ARE YOU WONDERING what on earth to do with that old crib you have stored away in your basement?

Members of Friends Outside would dearly love to help you solve your storage problem! Mrs. Rudy Enberg, the executive director of the local organization has announced that there is a desperate need for a crib and for men's rubber shoes, size 12.

The two emergency items are addendums to a list of needs that had been issued earlier this month. Still needed are dried and canned soups, dried beans, rice and canned fruit. For information about donating to Friends Outside call 661-6900.

MEMBERS OF THE SPRING Festival Committee at Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church in Westlake are preparing for their major fund raising event held annually the first weekend in May.

James McCann is the general chairman and his Floor chairpersons are Mrs. Richard Mudge, Mrs. James Barnett, Mrs. Peter Balestrieri, Mike Millane and Rick Rickert.

Frank Mullen and Mrs. Mudge are handling the major investments along with co-chairwoman Mrs. John Willden. The dinner, which will be held on Saturday, May 3, will be the special concern of Mrs. A. J. Phillips and Mrs. Clyde Silverthorne. Decorations will be provided by Ed Cuevas and Al Modena.

The theme this year will be OLM Roundup, and the round of activities will begin on Thursday, May 1 and last until midnight on Sunday, May 4.

Mrs. James Dougherty, publicity chairwoman for the Westlake Catholic Women, is handling the publicity for the festival.

BOOK REVIEW

Decorators' Show to Begin April 27

Home Place, the last of the grand Crocker Hillsborough estates, will be the site of the 18th Annual Decorators' Show House presented by the Coyote Point Museum Auxiliary.

Located at 101 Stonepine Road, Hillsborough, this mansion is situated in a wooded setting once planned as an arboretum.

Dates for the Show House are April 27 through May 18, 1975. The house will be open daily, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Wednesday evenings, 7 to 9 p.m. Tickets are $4 and children under eight are not admitted. Information may be obtained by calling (415) 343-3100.

On street parking will be available on streets surrounding the Show House with shuttle service to the house. To reach Home Place from El Camino Real, turn west on Barroilhet (at the San Mateo-Burlingame line) and follow it to Stonepine (on the left).

The Decorators' Show House is a widely imitated, nationally known event which annually attracts visitors from many parts of California. Attendance averages 20,000 per year. Sponsored by the Coyote Point Museum Auxiliary to raise monies for the new county environmental science museum facility, it draws those interested in home decorating, architecture, landscape gardening, art and antiques.

In the last four years the Auxiliary has shown the de Tristan estate, "Sky Farm" (W. W. Crocker); the Edwin Axel Christenson estate; and "Treehaven" (Mr. and Mrs. John Sinclair).

A different large home in San Mateo County is selected each year to be the Show House. The home is completely refurbished and decorated by a creative group of Bay Area interior designers, each being responsible for a different room. When the transition is completed, the home is open to the public for three weeks.

This year's Show House was the residence of Mrs. Robert Burns Henderson (Jennie Crocker) until her death in 1974. Mrs. Henderson was the granddaughter of Charles Crocker, one of the "Big Four" who built the Central Pacific Railroad.

Jennie Crocker purchased the 130 acre site for Home Place from the Tevis family who had bought it from Henri Barroilhet, a French banker who lived in San Francisco. Construction on the house began in 1926.

The house is a charming combination of an early California Spanish Mission and a Norman Chateau. Designed by architect George Kaufman, its massive size and semi-circular arches capture the religious characteristics of Norman architecture. The utilitarian Spanish influence is seen in its excellent proportion, hand-hewn beams, tile work and filigreed wrought iron. The building itself is covered with ivy, wisteria, and climbing roses, and the luxurious grounds were originally planned as an arboretum.

Built in the shape of an "H" Home Place contains 27 major rooms, not including the seven maids' rooms, 15 baths, and a series of specialty rooms. Nearly every major room contains a mammoth fireplace made of sandstone or marble.

Today the family still owns a portion of land which includes farm buildings. The remainder of the property recently has been purchased by a land development corporation which will sell it either as a single parcel or as subdivided properties.

Sheriff to Head Cancer Drive

San Mateo County Sheriff John R. McDonald Jr., has been named crusade chairman for the county unit of the American Cancer Society.

"Because of the present trend of inflation, this year's goal of $286,500 will be even more difficult to reach," said McDonald. Last year the San Mateo County Unit raised $262,500 which went toward the Society's three pronged attack on cancer — research, education and service and rehabilitation.

"Through research, we are learning more and more about this dread disease, but we still must continue to search. The answer may come tomorrow, next week, or next year. In the meantime, the Cancer Society will continue to provide the necessary programs for early detection and personal assistance," he added.

Sheriff McDonald went on to point out that, "I've seen cancer affect a broad spectrum of people, the rich and the poor, the old and the young and no matter what color of skin."

The society receives no government support and is not a member of the United Crusade. Contributions are received solely from door to door appeals, memorials and legacies.

Last year approximately 7,000 volunteers helped the San Mateo County Unit surpass their goal by calling on local households and businesses and through telephone solicitations and mass mailings.

This year, the volunteers are providing a new service. They will personally invite local women to special free Self-breast examination sessions which will be held throughout the county.

"We hope people of all ages will join with us in fighting this disease. No matter how little time or how little experience one has, we can use that person," emphasized Sheriff McDonald. Interested persons are asked to contact the Cancer Society's local office at 1163 Chess Drive, Suite A, in Foster City or phone 341-8749.

'Old Religion That Will Not Die'

"The Weird Ways of Witchcraft" is the bookworld's answer to T. V.'s "Fractured Features" and "The Wide World of Mystery."

The book reveals a wild Satanic Cult of 70 teenagers. In training for a career in witchcraft, they nailed hamsters to a cross and watched them die. In England "devil cults" meet to deface churches, steal sacraments and open graves. For refreshments they drink the blood of freshly killed cockerels. In New York City's racially mixed neighborhoods Voodoo rites are conducted in apartment houses. Black mambos preside as "worshippers," join in chants and dances that cast a hypnotic spell over the "congregation."

"The Weird Ways of Witchcraft" is a how-to-do-it book with the Witch's Manifesto. It also details ways of protecting yourself from evil curses. Here are the secrets of how to charm enemies, robbers and murderers, of how to cause a witch to die within one minute, and how to burn a rival witch so she receives pock marks over her entire body. Here are stories of sex, sorcery and sadism as they flourish, as strong as ever, in the space age. There is even a story of three witches that granted an interview.

The author is Dr. Leo Martello, founder of Witches International Craft Associates and the Witches Liberation Movement. Dr. Martello is editor of "The Wica Newsletter and the Witchcraft Digest" which he calls the old religion. He is one of the world's leading authorities on witchcraft, occultism, parapsychology and kindred subjects. The apex of his career came when he won the first legal civil rights victory for witches in history.

Stories of black magic and tales of horror may be found in Werewolf" as retold by Jeanne B. Hardindorff. So sit back in your recliners and let your blood run cold as you read of deceased women who haunt the stepmothers of their own children and of ghosts in strange costumes, and werewolves that rob innkeepers and guests as well as drink their blood.

"I Believe in Ghosts" is a much different kind of book, for there are stories by the most sophisticated people of the 20th century that relate things that couldn't happen but did.

HERE IS A TALE by Ida Lupino who claims that she talked over the telephone to a man who had hung himself three days before he called her. From a deep interest in spiritualism, Mae West received information about relatives and friends. At one time she learned from a spirit that a California man had committed a crime in the East for which he had not been punished. Miss West's tip to the police led to the man's arrest and conviction.

The actor, Raymond Massey, lived across the street from a house that seemed eternally infested with mice and bad luck. Although the house passed from one owner to another, the residents, one after another, murdered each other or committed suicide. Before each event of this nature, the mice scurried across the street to occupy the Massey mansion until the crime was committed, then the mice returned to their own home. No device known to man could eliminate the mice or the crime or explain how the mice knew the crime was pending.

Dr. Martello, author of "The Weird Ways of Witchcraft," has another book for 20th century weirdos entitled "Black Magic, Satanism and Voodoo." In it the secrets and practices of the occult arts are described and illustrated with veracity that makes one shake his head and mutter "unbelievable but true."

Dr. Martello discusses modern Satanism from the drug-induced devil worshippers to the devil-disbelievers and the white witches that may be found nearly everywhere. In "Black Magic, Satanism and Voodoo," the good doctor reveals that he, like many modern men and women, has developed a strong interest in "the old religion that will not die."

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.
Your children may not agree, but along with the chocolate Easter bunnies, jelly beans and hard-cooked eggs, something more substantial should be served on Easter Day. If ham is your choice, and a tasty choice it is, this first recipe for a broccoli and rice casserole would go nicely with it.

BROCCOLI AND RICE CASSEROLE

1 box frozen chopped broccoli
1 cup water
1 cup rice, quick-cooking variety
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped onion
Two thirds cube butter or margarine
1 can cream of chicken soup, undiluted
Four the one cup water over the one package broccoli. Heat until broccoli is thawed. Stir in the one cup quick-cooking rice, one-half cup celery, one-fourth cup onion, two-third cube margarine or butter and one can undiluted cream of chicken soup. Stir over low heat until butter is melted and ingredients are thoroughly blended. Pour into buttered casserole dish, 1 1/2-quart size. Cover and bake in preheated 300-degree oven for 1 hour.

Makes 6 medium servings.
Picking the entree is usually the easiest part of meal planning; it's the side dishes that cause us to ponder. Ponder no longer; this pineapple relish brings flavor and color to the meal and goes especially well with ham or lamb.

PINEAPPLE RELISH

1 large can pineapple chunks (2 1/2 size can)
3/4 cup vinegar
1 cup sugar
6 whole cloves
2 three-inch sticks cinnamon
6 whole all-spice
dash of salt
green food coloring
Drain the 29 ounces pineapple chunks. In a large saucepan combine the three-fourths cup vinegar, one cup sugar, six whole cloves, two pieces cinnamon, six whole all-spice and a dash of salt. Cook over medium heat for 10 minutes. Add the drained pineapple and bring to a hard boil. Remove from heat and add the green food coloring. Cool, cover and store in refrigerator.
NOTE: Be judicious in adding the green food coloring. A drop, stir, and add more if needed. You want a cool, spring green color.

THE LITTLE CHOIR

"California Trilium" is one of the 30 color and black and white photographs by Mike Spinelli now on exhibit through April 25 at the Octagon Gallery, Daly City Civic Center, 90th and Sullivan Streets, Daly City. The exhibition, entitled "The Two Worlds of Mike Spinelli" incorporates the Times' photographer's news and art work. It was first displayed at the San Mateo County Arts Council's Sunshine Gallery in San Mateo for two months. The Octagon Gallery is open to the public Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

'Two World' Exhibit Opens

There are two worlds for Mike Spinelli — the sometimes clashing, jarring world of day to day news photography and the world of photographic peace and beauty.
And Mike illustrates these two worlds in a photographic exhibit, now on display at the Octagon Gallery, at the Daly City Civic Center, 90th and Sullivan streets in Daly City.
Unlike many modern day photographers, Mike Spinelli is self-taught. He learned the elements of his craft largely by trial and error.
"I began with a box Brownie, like everyone else," Mike says, "but after a while, snapshots weren't enough."
"My Dad had a little folding camera from Germany, one that you could focus, and that had all the shutters and apertures on it. I just fiddled with that for a couple of years, and then I met a fellow who was the high school photographer. I sat in the darkroom while he developed and printed, at first."
"It was curiosity that led me from box Brownie to cameras that would allow me some control and beyond."
Mike is married now and lives in Burlingame.

He was born in Mobile, Ala., but spent most of his early life with his family in Bowling Green and Louisville, Ky. While still in high school, he worked for a local paper and later, while studying biology and chemistry at Belknap College, he got a job with United Press International.
Aside from his news photos, Mike also has worked in his spare time photographing the world around him in color. His most recent overseas trip to Peru provided the opportunity to capture on film Inca ruins in the Andes mountains.
"Light is the most important thing," Mike says, "but serendipity plays a great part in the creation of many successful photographs especially when you're working with people or changing things."
"Often a picture exists only for a fragment of time. With a landscape, you can set up and wait for hours to get just the right light, angle and composition. But with some pictures that just reach out and strike you, everything comes together at one moment. A minute later, the light or some other essential element has changed, and the picture is gone."

Terra Nova Band Wins High Rating

Terra Nova's band received the excellent rating of "H2" at the Reno Jazz Festival on the March 7-8 weekend. Three combos, also from Terra Nova, were given the Superior rating of "1."
The big bands were judged by three judges, each giving Terra Nova a "2."
Soloists for the big band include Mike Tyler, guitar;

Alex Jauregui, piano; and Kevin Johnson, trombone.

The smaller combos consisted of a trio, quartet, quintet and a Dixie Land combo. The trio, quartet and the quintet received some of the highest ratings at the Jazz Festival.

The quartet was led by Don Robinson on trombone, and the other players were Mike Formanack, Andy Getas and Alex Jauregui.

DC Man Ordered to Stand Trial

Central District Municipal Court Judge Thomas Caldwell Thursday ordered an 18-year-old Daly City man bound over to Superior Court on charges of armed robbery.

The suspect, James Semisch, has pleaded not guilty to armed robbery charges stemming from a March 6 attempted holdup at a Belmont store.

Belmont police arrested Semisch minutes after a gunman allegedly entered Super Junior Food Store, 940 Old Country Road, and demanded money.

The robber fled, however, when a customer approached. Belmont police arrested Semisch in a nearby field when they converged on the area.

Semisch was ordered to appear in Superior Court April 4 at 9 a.m.

Measles Upsurge In County

There has been an upsurge of measles in San Mateo County this year, but Dr. James M. Bodie, director of the Health Division of the Department of Health and Welfare doesn't categorize it as an epidemic.

Bodie said today that a total of 118 cases of measles have been reported since Jan. 1, most of them among teenagers — junior and senior high school students.

"We're (San Mateo County) in better shape than most other counties in the state," Bodie said.

He reported that there has been a breakout of measles along the entire West Coast, from Washington to Southern California.

It is similar to 1972, Bodie said, when the county recorded a total of 372 cases of measles for the year. There were only 14 cases of measles reported in the county last year. However, prior to the use of vaccine, 2,000 cases of measles a year were not uncommon, Bodie stated.

Noting that 90 per cent of the teenagers in the county have had immunization vaccine, Bodie said he suspects that the gamma globulin vaccine used in the late 1960's was not highly effective.

He is recommending that teenagers who haven't had measles or were inoculated in the 1960's get booster shots from their family doctors or from a health department clinic.

Bodie reported that 93 per cent of the youngsters entering the first grade in San Mateo County last fall had received measles vaccine, one of the highest rates in the state.

Richard Battaglia

Battaglia New Mayor of SSF

More than 250 South San Franciscans attended Mayor Richard Battaglia's inaugural party March 19 at the New Southern Restaurant after his swearing-in ceremony.

Retiring mayor Terry Mirri, Mayor-Pro Tem Leo Padreddi and Battaglia gave short addresses to the packed hall of well-wishers.

City Clerk Art Rodondi swore in Battaglia and Padreddi, and the group retired to the restaurant.

The party included many of South San Francisco's leading businessmen, city commissioners, school trustees, city officials, relatives, and interested citizens.

AAA Launches Gasoline Saving Plan

A campaign to cut down the amount of gasoline used in the United States by 15 percent was announced Wednesday by Charles F. Bulotti of San Mateo, president of the 16.2-million member American Automobile Association.

He described the million-dollar campaign as the first "real" program that has been offered to conserve gasoline.

"The American motorist has to conserve more fuel or the government will do it for him," Bulotti warned.

The automobile association will distribute a 15-page leaflet detailing gasoline-saving hints; a four-page leaflet explaining how to set up a carpool; and "Be a Gas Watcher" bumper stickers.

The materials may be obtained in San Mateo County at the three offices of the California Automobile Association, located on South Delaware Street in San Mateo, on El Camino Real in Redwood City, and next to the Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City.

In addition, the California State Automobile Association will urge its members to use its diagnostic service stations in San Francisco and San Jose, where car malfunctions — many of which waste gasoline — may be detected. The association also plans to present hints on saving fuel in advertisements in newspapers.

Although the gasoline shortage is temporarily over, Bulotti said, the economic problem is continuing. High prices for gasoline result in large numbers of dollars leaving the country, thus causing staggering trade deficits, he said.

"This is money lost to foreign nations instead of being recycled within this country to overcome unemployment, inflation and recession," Bulotti added.

The only real short-term solution, he said, is to reduce consumption on a voluntary basis.

"Volunteerism doesn't necessarily mean hardship for the motorist," he said. "All that is required is to make five gallons of gasoline do the work of six."

Fifteen per cent can be saved, he said by:

- A simple adjustment of the car's basic timing and proper setting of the fuel-air ratio at the carburetor.
- Use of mass transit whenever feasible.
- Forming carpools to and from work.
- Attention to proper driving techniques.
- Local trip planning to avoid duplications.
- Sharing a ride with a neighbor to the market, cleaners, etc.

Bulotti did not advocate elimination of all pleasure driving, since, he said, it would produce an undesirable effect on the economy.

"If you have been taking a drive every Sunday, go driving three Sundays a month. You will have saved 25 per cent of the gasoline used for Sunday drives."

He denied charges that volunteerism won't work, saying that if Americans are told all the facts and are made to understand the problem, they will voluntarily do what is needed.

Bulotti announced that the CSAA program has the endorsement of President Ford, who has resisted all efforts toward gasoline rationing. However, Bulotti said, the nation's only alternative to voluntary conservation is government control — such as high taxes, allocations or rationing.

"The constraints discriminate against the driving public. They would provide a severe hardship for many — a tough price for motorists to pay for failure to do the job ourselves," Bulotti concluded.

'Wrongful Death' Claim Filed

A Pacifica woman, Mrs. Marilyn Smith, has filed an $8 million claim against that coasts city, for the "wrongful death" of her husband, who was shot to death by a police officer when the officer intervened in a domestic quarrel.

The claim asks for compensation on behalf of herself and her three children for loss of personal services, earnings, contributions and companionship as a consequence of the death of John Smith.

On Dec. 10, 1974, Police Sgt. Tony Conte shot Smith when Smith suddenly rose from the couch in his dark living room and threw a hatchet at him.

Before the shooting Mrs. Smith had called police, saying she feared for her safety, and that of her children, when Smith armed himself with the hatchet and began accusing her and police of actions against him, according to police.

Police Chief Mel Nelson said Mrs. Smith told officers she had been held in her home forcibly five days by her husband. She had warned police, Nelson said, that her husband "will kill any police officer who comes near."

The death was followed by two independent investigations, one by the district attorney's office and the other by Nelson, both of which exonerated Sgt. Conte of any wrongdoing.

Campbell Will Pay $10,000

Television personality Tom Campbell has agreed to pay $10,000 in civil penalties as a part of the suit by San Mateo County against Matthew's TV and Stereo City in Daly City.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Margaret Kemp said that Campbell, not admitting any guilt, has also agreed to voluntarily resign as an employee of the firm and that he will not conduct any advertising whatsoever on behalf of Matthews.

The agreement was approved Thursday by Presiding Superior Court Judge Robert D. Miller.

A suit charging Matthew's TV and Stereo City with false advertising and unfair competition was filed by the district attorney's office last December.

The firm's president, Steven H. David, agreed earlier this month to make a penalty payment of $80,000 settlement of his involvement in the suit.

A series of six lectures on northern and central Italy will be offered by the Committee for Art at Stanford in preparation for the tour they are sponsoring to Italy in the fall.

The lectures will be conducted in the auditorium of the Cummings Art Building on Tuesday evenings at 8:15. A nominal fee will be charged non-members.

Merit Awards Presented

The northern district of the San Mateo County Boy Scouts council presented two awards of merit to two outstanding scouters, at its annual dinner last week. Honored were Fred Milam of San Bruno and Mrs. Jean Proctor, Colma.

Milam was a scout in Troop 8, San Francisco from 1924 to 1929. From that time, he has served the community through scouting in many ways. He attained the rank of Eagle, and the Milams have a son who became an Eagle.

Milam has been a scoutmaster, committee chairman, a district chairman three different times serving on the organization and extension committee, camping committee and the membership committee. He has been a merit badge counselor for many years.

Mrs. Proctor received her award of merit for outstanding service to her community, family and to scouting. Mrs. Proctor devoted 21 years as a girl scout leader.

For Cage Stat Freaks

Don't read this column — the first part of it, at least — unless you're queer for basketball statistics. What we've done, in a piece of relatively original research (not purely so because of a great deal of aid from the "Official 1974-75 NBA Guide," published by The Sporting News), is to project what the top NBA stars, past and present, have accomplished for each 48 minutes of playing time in the annual NBA All-Star games.

You can draw your own conclusions as to the relevancy of the statistical table below. Some of you might feel it significant because you think of the All-Star game as an event with built-in pressure because of the spectacle, and because the competition is absolute. You might, therefore, conclude that those who do well in All-Star games are the best "pressure" players. Others might think of the All-Star game as a lark for the players, an event which few of them take seriously, which sometimes produces imbalance as to performance, depending on the attitude of the individual player toward the game: i.e., a first year player might not dig his way into some fantastic statistics against a really greater player who is just out having fun and doesn't give a damn about such an exhibition game.

Also keep in mind the possible distortions which might occur — especially for those players who have performed in only a few games — in the Pacini 48 Increment Method for judging the relative significance of basketball stats. For that purpose, the figure in parenthesis after each player's name indicates the amount of All-Star games in which he has appeared through the 1973-74 season.

We included in the study field goal percentage (FG. PCT.), free throw percentage (FT. PCT.), rebounds (RE), assists (AST.), and average points per game (AVG.), or, actually, per 48 minutes. Steals and blocked shots were not included because those statistics weren't kept until a couple of years ago. One last note. The names are in no significant order, though those who have played most tend to be toward the top of the list.

Frazier (5)	42.6	66.7	7.4	7.7	18.5
Foust (8)	31.5	93.8	19.9	1.2	19.9

Now that we've driven the typesetters crazy, you can draw your own conclusions.

PERSONALLY, we were disappointed in the overall All-Star game performances of Jerry West, Bill Sharman, Wenny Wilkins, Tommy Heinsohn, and Walt Frazier. It's odd that all of the above, with the exception of Heinsohn, are backcourt men.

There weren't any real surprises, except mild ones in Jack Twyman and Vern Mikkelsen, who were much more effective than we remembered them. Of course, that was a long time ago. Some might be surprised at what George Mikan accomplished in the "classics," but if you have a long enough memory you've got to recall that in the early years of the NBA, Mikan was a towering figure, both literally and figuratively, and dominated the pros for a four or five-year period like nobody had previously. Mikan was the first really big, mobile man.

As a matter of fact, if we had to pick the most all around effective man in NBA All-Star games, Mikan would be right up there with Bob Pettit, who would have to get the nod because he played in three times as many games as Mikan. To round out a top five, it looks to us as if it would have to be Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Elgin Baylor and Wilt Chamberlain.

A "second" team of All-Stars might be Mikkelsen (who, if he had played a little more, would be on the top five), Gus Johnson, Rick Barry, Oscar Robertson and Dolph Schayes. And perhaps Twyman could be the sixth man on that team.

We couldn't really field a true "team" with the above players, though, because there is only one guard — Robertson. As we said above, a lot of guards' statistics in the All-Star game disappointed us. If we wanted to round out a full team, though, we'd name Hal Greer to team with Robertson, with Pettit and Baylor up front, along with Mikan at the post. And we'd use John Havlicek as swing man.

SSF Warriors Take NP League Lead

Scoring in every inning but the first, South San Francisco High's baseball team bombed Serramonte 14-5 Thursday to take a half game lead in the North Peninsula League.

Standings — South SF 2-0, Terra Nova 1-0, Westmoor 1-0, HMB 1-0, Jefferson 0-1, Oceana 0-1, El Camino 0-1, Serramonte 0-2.

Pads Edge Westmoor

Serra High's baseball team edged visiting Westmoor 2-1 in a non-league game Thursday.

Randy Gomez and Jim Meyersiek drove in the winning runs with singles in the third inning. John Duchi got the win.

Serramonte Is Getting Quicker

Serramonte High's hurdlers are getting faster with each meet, which is bad news for the rest of the North Peninsula League, since the Regents are already among the quickest in the Bay Area.

Title favorites Serramonte and South San Francisco battled blustery winds en route to easy victories in Thursday's league openers. Serramonte downed Half Moon Bay 92-31, SSF beat El Camino 107-24, Oceana edged Westmoor 72-67 with a win in the meetings — ending mile relay and Terra Nova swamped Jefferson 114 1/2-19 1/2.

Serramonte's Ron Kennedy and Tony Hicks had a following wind as they clocked 14.2 and 14.4 in the high hurdles, fastest times in the Central Coast Section.

But Kennedy got no help from the wind when he switched to the 330 low hurdles, an event he's seldom run. He finished in 39.6, the best time in the Central Coast Section so far by a good margin.

Ken McBride won both distance events for Half Moon Bay.

South City's Bob Ranulio was a triple winner, taking the hurdles events and the high jump. NPL discus champion Dan John threw 150-0 1/2 into the wind.

SSF visits Serramonte in a crucial meet April 3, the first Thursday after Easter vacation.

The Oceana-Westmoor meet came down to the final race, but Shark mile relay anchor man Bill LaForge hit the tape with plenty of room to spare.

LaForge also won the 880 (an event he's never lost in the NPL) and the mile, with times of 2:00.5 and 4:33.8 in the wind. John Weiss took the discus and shot puts for the Sharks. Frank Ahse was a double winner for Westmoor.

The Guterres family helped move Terra Nova along — twins Pete and Paul plus cousin Rennie swept the 100 and were responsible for wins in three other events. John Johnson recorded a good 14.8 high hurdles time, and Armando Morales was a double winner.

Skyline Relay Team Victorious

By FRED BAER
Post Correspondent
SANTA BARBARA — Regardless of their performances, track athletes from College of San Mateo and Skyline found the coastside here a far, far better place to be than the Bay Area Friday.

The worst they had to put up with was a little cold during the Santa Barbara Easter Relays, and they came up with some respectable efforts.

Skyline had the only outright win, in the two mile relay, Brian Pierce, running the third half mile leg, gave the Trojans a lead they'd never relinquish, and Tony Fotinos coasted home. The total time was 7:53.8, seven seconds better than Skyline's previous best.

Skyline's John McVeigh was fifth in the two mile at 9:26.8.
CSM pole vaulter Ryon Paton cleared 15-0. Only two vaulters went higher, but Paton placed sixth with more missed. Winner Jim Knaub of El Camino passed until the bar reached 16-4, then cleared on his third try.
CSM runs in a Golden Gate Conference meet during Easter vacation, 11 a.m. today at City College of San Francisco. Neither school is entered in the big San Jose Relays next Saturday. Skyline goes to the DiabloValley Relays and CSM to the Marin-Santa Rosa Relays.

Terra Nova High's baseball team rode a five-run sixth inning rally to a 6-5 win over Burlingame Monday in the first round of the Jefferson Invitational at Marchbank Field in Daly City.

In other first round action, Jefferson edged Riordan 6-5, and Crestmoor whipped Westmoor 7-2.
Mark Ellison's two-run single and Todd McClure's two-run double highlighted Terra Nova's explosion in the sixth.

Turkeys Undefeated In DC Hunch League

The Daly City Adult Basketball Three Man Hunch League teams are fighting for the coveted championships in the two divisions.

Open Division

The Wild Turkeys remained the only undefeated team in the league with a 40-22 victory over the Crutches. Rich Torres and Jim Gorecki shared high point honors for the Crutches with eight points each. The Wild Turkeys' Ed Cooper was the game's high scorer with 24 points as the Turkeys won their fifth straight game.

The SAL Coaches played tough, but finally succumbed to the Centerfolds by a narrow 40-34 margin. Rich Matosich led the SAL Coaches with 13 points, and teammates George Vorpel and Roger Allen added 10 and 11 points respectively. For the Centerfolds, once again, it was the Brothers Reitz who proved too much to handle. Roy and Rich collected 15 points each to pace the Centerfolds to their fourth victory against only one defeat.

Six Foot and Under Division

The Glorified Gunners won their fourth game in a row with a 40-23 victory over the Pickers. The win boosted the Gunners' record to 4-1 and kept them in second place. Jim Tomasello led the Pickers' attack with 13 points. The Gunners' combo of Dave Murphy and Tim Barry shared high point honors with 14 points each.

The Roundballers, led by Gary Massoni's 17 points defeated the Good Time Boys 41-33 to register their second victory against three losses. John O'Keefe, also of the Roundballers, tallied 12 points to aid in the victory. Gary Ciardella paced the Good Timers' attack with 14 points and teammate Buzz Romero added 12 points more, but it wasn't enough to beat the Roundballers.

The Wonders had to go into overtime to defeat the Superchargers by a 48-43 margin. The victory marked the fifth consecutive victory by the Wonders and kept them tied with the Warriors for first place. Steve Sunseri and Chuck Lofgren paced the Superchargers' attack as they collected 16 and 13 points respectively. Rich Olson, of the Wonders, led all scorers with 21 points.

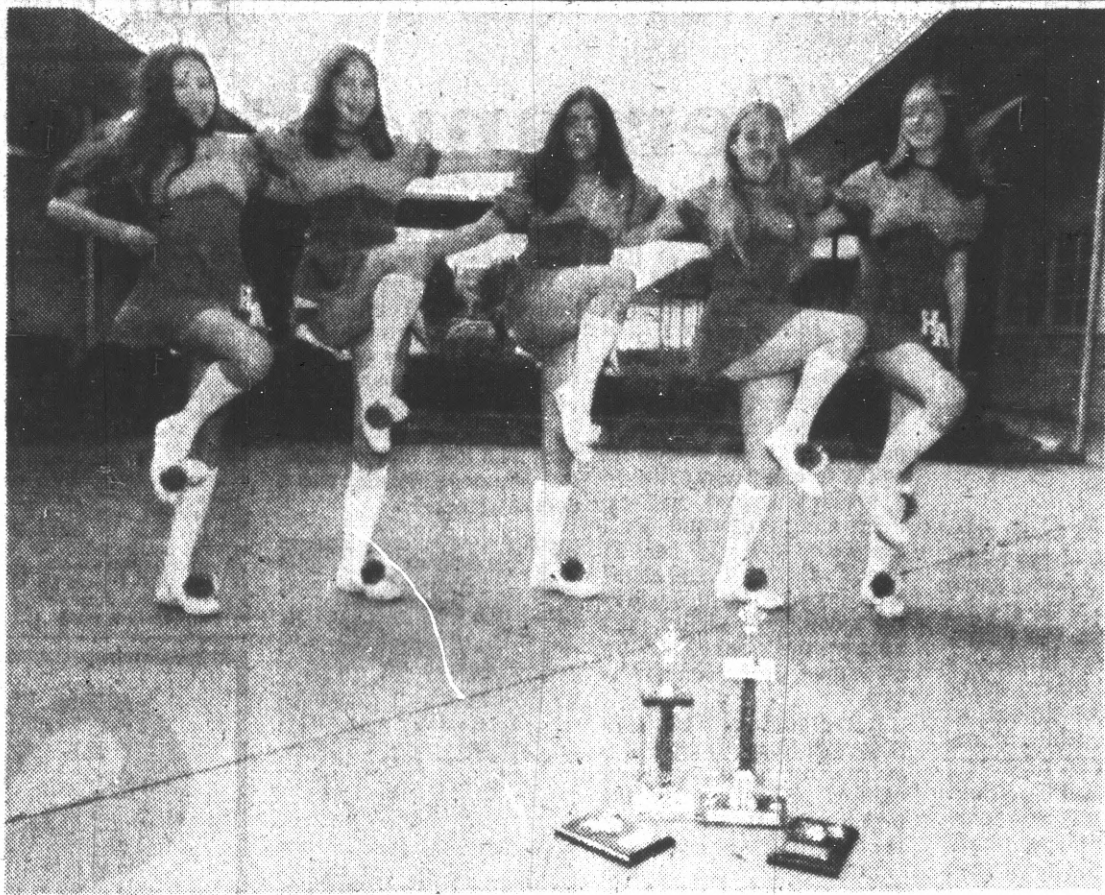

Jim Clawson and Ron Bourdon also of the Wonders contributed 12 and 10 points respectively to aid the victory.

Black Velvet won its second game of league play with a 42-37 victory over the Hawks. An outstanding individual performance by the Hawks' Art White kept the Hawks close. Art scored a game high 23 points and teammate Rich Warnick tallied 14 points, but it wasn't enough to overcome a good team effort from Black Velvet. Greg Hansen paced Black Velvet with 16 points and teammate Gary Bender and Steve Calass added 12 and 10 points respectively to aid the Velvet victory.

The Warriors held on to defeat a tough Wild Turkey team by a 43-38 tally. The win kept the Warriors tied for first place as they boosted their record to 5-0. Gary Thompson of the Wild Turkeys led all scorers with 17 points. The Warriors were paced by Bruce Fehman and Dave Garcia who tallied 15 and 14 points respectively.

Alcoholism Program Is Postponed

A proposed multi-phase program to help alcoholics and problem drinkers was put over until budget considerations by the Board of Supervisors March 18.

According to Dr. George Pickett, county director of public health and welfare, the National Council on Alcoholism estimates that 11,300 problem drinkers in San Mateo County cost their employers $25.5 million a year.

Dr. Pickett said the problem is steadily becoming worse among juveniles from 12 to 18, who now drink more than they use narcotics.

He said supervisors would be shocked if they had a chance to look at the teenage population.

"There is no program now, and I am talking about the 16-, 17-, and 18-year-olds who look like skid row bums — stretched out on the street. They are picked up and taken to Hillcrest. That is the concern I have."

While he agreed there is no cure for alcoholism at present, he compared it to chronic arthritis.

"You can relieve the pain. The same can be said about alcoholism. There is no cure. But there are some experiences where we have had some success."

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. agreed that alcohol use is some 30 per cent higher than narcotics among the young now, but he said he went to a parochial school, and, "I cannot recall a weekend where we did not go to a party. The alcohol is the cause and not the effect. Abstinence is only one thing. Other things must be considered. We must set up criteria for evaluating programs. I want assurance that a program will be judged on abstinence and nothing else."

The program would have four target areas — women, youth, working problem drinkers and chronic alcoholics.

It would be divided into eight areas:

- Administration
- Prevention
- Emergency services
- Detoxification programs, both social and medical

- Hospital services
- Residential recovery services
- Non-resident recovery services, such as self-help groups, out patient services, day treatment and drop-in services.

- Rehabilitation, including vocational rehabilitation.

Dr. Pickett also recommended a contract be entered into with the Charles H. Drew Health Center in East Palo Alto to serve the minority population in the southern part of the county.

The pilot program, which would be financed mainly from a $22,333 grant from the Hughes Alcoholic Fund and $6,030 from the state would cost the county only $670, would also provide a variety of services, including providing of out-reach services to seek referrals from employers, health care facilities, community agencies and other sources:

- Evaluation of each client, including a complete physical education;
- Referral of evaluated clients to appropriate agencies;
- Counseling services for the families of clients;
- A follow up of clients for a year.

Dr. Pickett pointed to the large number of arrests for alcoholic related offenses in the East Palo Alto and East Menlo Park area, and said that the program had been given a high priority by the East Palo Alto Municipal Council.

"There are serious alcohol abuse problems in the area," according to Dr. Pickett, and the risks number 10,400 out of a population of 147,000. And additional 40,000 to 56,000 people are affected, such as the families of problem drinkers.

County Manager M.D. Tarshes recommended action on the programs be deferred until the entire budget is considered after James V. Fitzgerald, board chairman, cited the high costs of the programs.

"We must cut back, and determine what programs can be eliminated," he said.

Supervisor Jean Fassler suggested that the board meet with the president of the California Council on Alcoholism to see where the emphasis is being placed across the nation, and Tarshes promised "proposals will be presented in addition to this one so the board will have a chance to look at all problems at one time."

He pointed out the detoxification program at the Crystal Springs Rehabilitation Center is already "seriously under-funded."

Full-time Job for Supervisors

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors made it known officially March 18 — theirs is a full-time job.

And to make it even more assertive, the board indicated it will consider submitting a county charter amendment to the voters in 1976 to specify that the office of supervisor is full-time.

Supervisor John M. Ward brought up the matter, asking his fellow board members to adopt an ordinance declaring the job of supervisor as full-time and requiring a minimum average of 40 to 50 hours a week.

This, Ward said, would help to clarify for the public a job which has not always been considered full-time.

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson informed Ward, however, that there is no authority to adopt such an ordinance which could be enforceable. He suggested a resolution of intention to place the matter before the voters in the form of a charter amendment.

Ward said the reason he proposed the ordinance is that he is frequently asked, "What else do you do?"

"This would clarify for the public that this is a full-time job," he stated.

It also would clarify the reason supervisors receive a salary of $21,733 a year, Ward added.

After Sorenson reported an ordinance would not be effective, Ward said the board members could put in a full-time work schedule as a matter of self-discipline and morality.

"The supervisors could police themselves," he stated. If there are violations, other members could take them to task.

Ward also wants the board members to restrict work on any outside job to 20 hours a week maximum, the same as applies to county employees.

Update Urged of County Park, Open Space Plans

A change of emphasis in the county's park and open space program from development to acquisition was urged before the Board of Supervisors March 19.

After considerable discussion, the board postponed until an adjourned meeting April 3 a decision on the recommendation of the County Parks and Recreation Commission for the annual updating of the park and open space plan.

Also continued to the April 3 date was approval of a concept plan for the development of Wunderlich Park adjacent to Woodside. An alternate proposal for the park development was submitted to the board by Carol Fisch of Woodside.

The board did give tentative approval to the concept plan for Sam McDonald Park, but deferred action on the recommendation that the county proceed with acquisition of 475 acres adjacent to the park to provide a connection with Pescadero Creek Park.

In a letter to the board, Alfred C. Schmidt, chairman of the Peninsula Regional Group of the Sierra Club, urged that the recommendations of the Parks and Recreation Commission be changed to provide for a higher percentage of funds for acquisition of park and open-space land and that acquisition be carried out at a faster rate.

The Sierra Club supports the recommendation of the commission that there be a complete review of the parks and open space element of the county general plan, the letter stated, asking that this be done before the next annual updating of the 10-year parks and open space program.

Also, the Sierra Club is asking that a public hearing be scheduled to obtain information concerning a better definition of the role of the county's park system and its relationship to those of the cities on one hand, and to those of the state and federal governments on the other.

In his letter, Schmidt noted that the proposed percentage allocation of funds for the 10-year program has gone from 56 per cent acquisition and 44 per cent development in 1972 to 48 per cent acquisition and 52 per cent development in 1975.

Appearing before the board, Schmidt said that the Sierra Club is concerned that there will not be enough money to meet the objectives of the 10-year program. He urged that the board adopt a policy of acquiring park and open space sites near population centers to provide easier access by the public.

"Development can be safely postponed, while acquisition cannot," he asserted.

Schmidt suggested that the county adopt a policy of allocating 80 per cent of its park and open space funds for acquisition until the average percentage for acquisition is brought up to 75 per cent.

Polly Sandkulla, chairwoman of the Parks and Recreation Commission, urged the board to adopt the recommendations of the commission for the 1975-76 updating the parks and open space plan which places an emphasis on development of Coyote Point Park, Pescadero Creek Park, Redwood Park and James Fitzgerald Marine Reserve.

"It would be very difficult not to go ahead with development where it has already started," she said.

Anja Miller, mayor of Brisbane, repeating a request made before the Parks and Recreation Commission last month, urged that the county restore to the parks and open space budget $6 million originally allocated for acquisition of the 1,244-acre regional park site on San Bruno Mountain. The amount was about halved by the commission after it was determined that the acquisition cost would not total what originally was anticipated.

The funds could be utilized for purchase of additional park land, Mrs. Miller asserted.

Supervisor Jean Fassler replied that the county is committed to the acquisition of a certain amount of land, not to a dollar amount.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes stated that if there is any commitment at all it should not be to dollars.

There should be a commitment to specific acquisition, he said.

Ellie Larsen, of Millbrae, complained that it is "not proper" to drop the acquisition fund for San Bruno Mountain Park while leaving the development fund for the park the same while there is the "threat of the loss of so much open space."

Supervisor William H. Royer said there should be additional information supplied by the administrative staff and the Parks and Recreation Department before the board considers changing priorities.

"I'm opposed to scrapping all our plans for development without facts to go on," he stated.

The board decided that the County Planning Department should begin review of the park portion of the conservation and open space element of the general plan and that the Parks and Recreation Department should prepare the next review of the 10-year parks and open space program subsequent to the board's review of the Planning Department's findings.

Action on the current recommendation of the Parks and Recreation Commission for parks and open space acquisition and development was postponed until the board begins its budget study sessions next June.

In her appearance before the board, Mrs. Fisch termed as "useless" the Parks and Recreation Commission's recommendation that the county acquire an 18½-acre site adjacent to Bear Gulch Road as a parking area for Wunderlich Park without the acquisition of the privately owned property on the north side of the road.

In its recommendation for the park development, the commission proposed that the private property not be acquired and added to the park area.

Mrs. Fisch and Robert Myers, Woodside town manager, both urged that Bear Gulch Road not be improved as an access route to the park because of the potential for increasing traffic through the town.

Mrs. Fisch contended that there could be suitable access to the park at the point where it touches Skyline Boulevard. Three major trails in the park also converge at that point, she said.

Supervisor Edward J. Baccio, who said his wife assisted Mrs. Fisch in securing some 3,000 signatures on petitions urging no development of Wunderlich, urged the board to consider Mrs. Fisch's alternate plan.

Mrs. Sandkulla informed the board that the Parks and Recreation Commission had not been informed of the alternate plan.

The board decided to continue action on approval of the concept plan to the April 3 meeting beginning at 9 a.m.

Good Friday Holiday Banned for SM Aides

San Mateo County employees will not have three hours off with pay in observance of Good Friday, as has been the custom in the past, County Manager M. D. Tarshes announced today.

He said that the county will go along with a recent State District Court of Appeal decision holding that to allow holiday time with pay on Good Friday would violate the separation of church and state as specified in the U. S. Constitution.

Tarshes said that he was advised by Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson that to allow employees time off with pay would not only violate the separation of church and state, but would also constitute a gift of public funds.

"For that reason, no part of Friday, March 28, will be a county holiday, and all county offices must be open for business," Tarshes said.

The county in the past has closed the County Government Center in Redwood City and other county offices from noon until 3 p.m. on Good Friday.

Tarshes said that department heads have the discretion to give employees time off with pay if it is charged to vacation or compensatory time, and if the conduct of county business so permits.

State Land Use Role Is Studied

A study of the state's role in land use has been completed by the League of Women Voters of California, with the Central San Mateo League taking part, Robin Daly of the San Mateo unit announces.

League members, she says, "will now be able to act on land use issues affecting California."

Evelyn Kaplan, president of the League of Women Voters of California, and a San Mateo resident, explains the need for the study.

"Our members indicated they wanted guidelines and standards developed by the state for land areas of state-wide concern," she said.

"They were emphatic on the point that the maximum amount of decision making should be made by local governments," she added.

In addition, Mrs. Kaplan said, "League members felt citizens must have a meaningful part in land use planning and regulation."

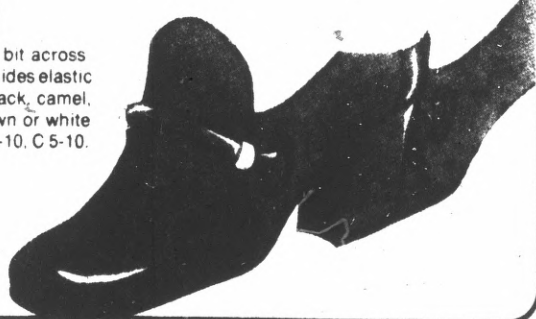

The newly announced position, Ms. Daly said, will enable the League of Women Voters to seek state policies, guidelines and standards for such areas as fragile or historic lands, renewable resource lands, natural hazard lands and land impacted by public investment.

She said league members who feel the state should assume authority for land use planning and control if local government failed to do so, will be searching for a state land use plan allowing maximum decision making at the local government level.

Big Year Planned for Bicentennial

Kent Williams, Western Regional Director of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration has told a San Mateo County Cities Workshop luncheon in Burlingame recently that it will be "an exciting year" dominated by "people who care."

Mayors and staff leaders representing a majority of the county's cities met for a two-hour workshop and reports on the Heritage Faire, the Marine Corps contributions, and the county coordination, at the Sheraton Hotel.

Also addressing the gathering was Midge Bolton, director of the county's Volunteer Bureau, who outlined the volunteer program and needs.

Williams told of a national meeting and of the wide scope of Bicentennial activities he found there, ranging from construction of adobe bricks by antique means in Texas to ancient canoes in Hawaii.

"There were almost 300 people telling of things happening, going to happen or of individual contributions by people who care," Williams said. "I want to share the excitement that is going on."

ing Center, San Bruno, noting that the founding of the Corps predates the nation itself, said that by August the Marines will provide color guards in replicas of the original 1775 uniforms of the Corps.

Knudson said his 15-man staff is ready to aid Bicentennial activities, that color guards and marching units will be available, and that "we are building our own van" with historical artifacts to be displayed.

Mrs. Jean Orr Candy, speaking on the Heritage Faire to be presented at the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta, said that planning is underway for a small colonial village to be constructed in a section of the Community Building at the fair.

The problem, she said, is one of time, of assembling the people, the artists, and craftsmen to put together the project.

She mentioned that Mrs. Lucille Hosmer, Heritage Faire Committee chairman, would like to see each city library put together a heritage shelf, and she displayed several new books appropriate to it. Mrs. Hosmer also urged, she said, looking into books printed before 1900, that might be found in attics or storage, "to see how far afield" government has strayed since then.

"We will need artists and carpenters for the Heritage Faire," she said, urging a search for volunteers.

Mrs. Bolton, discussing the volunteer program, explained that the Bureau is the official agency that serves without fee for recruitment of volunteers, placement and program development in San Mateo County.

She advised the gathering of about 50 at the luncheon meeting that they must consider two things: why people volunteer, and what the volunteer expects.

People volunteer, she said, to feel useful or needed, to help a cause, to share a skill, for job experience, and for ego.

On the other hand, the volunteer has a right to expect certain things, she said.

She advised a good job description, interview, orientation and guidelines, training and recognition of volunteers.

"Don't knock it when they come up with a better idea," she said, "but don't let them run away with your project. Expect them to live up to your commitment."

"Remember, it is a team."

Seminars Scheduled

Space is still available in two seminars designed especially for people in the Real Estate field, which will be held at the College of San Mateo Little Theatre today and tomorrow from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.

Sponsored by Community Services and created in conjunction with local Real Estate Boards, the seminars are entitled "creative financing," and "legal aspects."

In view of today's tight money market, the topics are expected to be of acute interest to a real estate oriented audience. Participants are re offered the opportunity to take either or both seminars and may do so on a credit or non-credit basis.

The faculty for the two programs will include: Russell M. Jedinak, president of Huntington Escrow Service, Inc.; Jack Chamberlain, president of Intra-Coastal Investment and Mortgage Co.; Eric Jorgenson, attorney-at-law; and Louis J. Mallette, attorney-at-law. Fee is $10 for one day; $17.50 for both days; lunch is included.

Pacifican Honored

Jerry A. Wellemeyer, of 520 Reina Del Mar, Pacifica, is one of 100 high school students selected to compete for national honors in a contest to design an emblem to be carried by the Viking spacecraft to Mars.

Wellemeyer is one of ten area regional winners in the contest conducted by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington, D.C. The regional winners represent the ten best entries submitted in each of ten regions of the United States.

A national committee will select ten national finalists from the 100 regional winners. From this group, a national winner will be chosen by NASA, which sponsored the contest in cooperation with the National Association of Science Teachers.

The contest required an original design and a brief essay on its significance. The ten national finalists will be invited to the Viking launch of the first American spacecraft scheduled to land on another primary planet of the solar system.

The Viking spacecraft is planned to touch down on Mars about July 4, 1976, the Bicentennial anniversary. It will carry the student symbol as well as American flag and American Bicentennial design on its dust shield.

Holy Week Services in Broadmoor

Three Holy Week Services will be held at the Broadmoor Presbyterian Church, 377 - 87th St., Daly City.

Tomorrow, Maundy Thursday Communion Service will be held at 7:30 p.m. with the church choir singing.

Friday marks the second service which is the Good Friday worship from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. with music, prayer and devotional messages.

The church sanctuary is open from 12 to 3, the hours Jesus Christ hung on the cross.

Easter Sunday worship will be held Sunday at 10 a.m. with two choirs singing and the pastor, Rev. Herbert Tweedie, preaching on The Resurrection.

Infant care is provided, and Sunday School is held the same hour.

Union Easter Sunrise Service will be on Mt. Davidson, San Francisco, at 6 a.m.

The public is invited to these Holy Week Services.

KENYA VISIT

Navy Aviation Ordnance-man Third Class Eric M. Schmiedel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Schmiedel, Jr. of 466 Corrido Way, South San Francisco, has visited Mombasa, Kenya, on the east coast of Africa, as a crewmember of the nuclear-powered attack aircraft carrier USS Enterprise.

He also recently crossed the equator while on a cruise in the Indian Ocean. The Enterprise, homeported at Alameda, Calif., is deployed as part of the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

White wines are generally known for their young fresh taste. Charles Krug Chenin Blanc and Wente Grey Riesling both possess this quality and would be fine compliments to your ham or turkey meal on Easter.

The Chenin Blanc has a rich fruity taste and would be considered medium dry. The Wente Grey Riesling in contrast, is a more dry crisp wine. Both should be served chilled. Charles Krug Chenin Blanc is $2.75 a fifth and Wente Grey Riesling is $2.50 a fifth.

Ryan Tells of His Liberal Dilemma on Vietnam

Editor's Note: Rep. Leo Ryan (D-San Mateo) is a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and has recently returned from a fact-finding trip to Vietnam.

By LEO J. RYAN

As a card-carrying "liberal," I yield to no one in my dislike for President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime in South Vietnam or, for that matter, any other oppressive and cruel dictatorship.

Nevertheless, I am hesitant to reverse America's military aid policies of the last 25 years without plenty of forethought. In the case of South Vietnam, we must face up to one stark prospect: If we drop our level of material support, that country may well fall into Communist hands.

So, you see, I am in a quandary, and there is no easy out — certainly no shortcut to certitude.

Not long ago, I went by myself to South Vietnam to examine the issues at close range. I talked to U.S. and foreign newsmen. I talked to peasants in the fields and to religious leaders bitterly opposed to the Thieu regime. Without exception, those who oppose Thieu still wanted U.S. military assistance.

At the same time, what they all feared was a North Vietnamese takeover, for they agreed that Communist rule would result in much harsher control, leading to the shooting or imprisonment of tens of thousands of South Vietnamese citizens.

Upon my return, I wrote a report for the House Foreign Affairs Committee. In it, I suggested support for the requested $300 million in addition aid because, in my view, this new and "liberal" Congress should take at least the first six months to examine where the truth may lie. To vote on continued aid for South Vietnam over the next few years without having Congress examine the matter thoroughly — and its implications over the long haul — would be to invoke the "herd instinct" approach of the past. Those who are in support of South Vietnam are Hawks or conservatives, those opposed are Doves or liberals.

The decision to be made by Congress should transcend easy labels. It is not simply $300 million for South Vietnam. The question is whether to continue funding military resistance in a country that requests our help against outside attack by a Communist government. We have followed the policy of acceding to such requests for a quarter century. My main concern is to get as many members of Congress as possible to understand the gravity of reversing this policy.

I myself may be ready to change my attitude about supporting non-Communist nations under Communist attack. I find that the Communist governments of Poland or Romania, for example, are not much harsher than the non-Communist governments of Chile or Brazil. Perhaps the line between Communist and non-Communist has been blurred or dulled over the past 25 years.

So it may be time for the United States to recognize this fact. If Congress agrees, there would be profound consequences for all of us in the years ahead. The decision should be made neither hastily nor lightly, and in reaching it, we should discard all shibboleths.

As a liberal, I supported Richard Nixon's impeachment. I voted to end the bombing in Cambodia. I voted against the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller for Vice President. I opposed the nomination of Gerald Ford for Vice President. I voted to abolish the House Internal Security Committee. I voted for the Bolling Report to alter the seniority system.

But I am a troubled liberal when it comes to adopting a new role on the world stage. One reason is my fear that some in the liberal "herd" may not even recognize the need for a consistent policy. Perhaps we could save $300 million this year in Vietnam and $1.3 billion next year and billions of dollars more after that by getting out of Vietnam completely. But once we reverse the principle of involvement — a principle first established by Harry S. Truman — we must also face the question of getting out of South Korea, where we have 40,000 soldiers in a country armed to the teeth against a potential Communist invader of approximately the same size and strength that threatens South Vietnam.

Perhaps we should also get out of Taiwan, which faces less potential danger than do the 18 million citizens of South Vietnam. Perhaps too, we should get out of Germany, where troops and military assistance cost billions each year.

So the decision is of wide-ranging importance and worth wide discussion. Perhaps the tens of billions of dollars being spent each year to combat Communism are allocated under assumptions that have been overtaken by time. Surely that kind of money could relieve much misery and suffering here at home and around the world.

I am also worried about how the liberal "herd" may react after South Vietnam is overrun. Will we be as hotly incensed by wholesale arrests and executions by the North Vietnamese as we are by the right-wing atrocities of the military junta in Chile, or by the well-publicized obscenities perpetrated upon the Korean people by the Park regime in Korea?

To me, as a professed liberal, the principle we need to follow is this: to support freedom of the individual against enslavement wherever we find it. In a world where that principle appears and disappears regularly within countries that we help support, we should be much more aware of situations as they change and much less sensitive to the "herd instinct" so rampant in American politics.

Congress should conform to a policy which follows an idea, not a label. It should follow and support the principle of freedom for people, but not necessarily continuing support for specific people in charge of a government at any given time.

So I think we need a breathing spell to collect our thoughts and chart a course, irrespective of what labels might be applied to the final decision. We have had quite enough name-calling in the past decade, quite enough shouting and shooting, quite enough mindless attitudinizing.

What we need to do now is, as a people, formulate a coherent way of viewing America's world role, not just for this year, but for the next quarter century.

Of all my fears, the worst is this: that we have become so mired in sloganeering that belief in principle now is confined to a handful of philosophers and, perhaps, to a few college students not yet deafened by the din.

SERVICE NEWS

Arctic Class
Ft. Bragg, N.C. — Army Sergeant Ronald G. Ingram, a member of the 82nd Airborne Division here, participated in arctic training at Fort Drum, N.Y. He is the son of Mrs. Constance Lobo, 1060 Continental Way, Belmont.

The training included cross country skiing, use of snow shoes, survival techniques and weapons qualifications.

Sub School
Navy Seaman Aviation Electrician's Mate Eric S. Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Clarke of 138 Stone Pine Lane, Menlo Park, graduated from Naval Submarine School at Groton, Conn.

He received instruction in the standard operational and emergency procedures used aboard submarines.

He will now report aboard a submarine to undergo an intensive six month practical training period, and will be able to carry out virtually any duty aboard prior to being awarded the submariner's "Silver Dolphins."

He is a 1974 graduate of Menlo Atherton High School, Atherton, Calif.

Field Training
Ft. Richardson, Alaska — Army Private First Class Mark L. Rios, 19, a 1974 graduate of Peninsula High School, San Mateo, participated in an arctic field training exercise here.

Paramedics Begin Duties

The formal start of San Mateo County's first paramedic program was announced Wednesday at a press conference in South San Francisco.

Fire Capt. William Stridebech and his crew of nine firemen-paramedics and the physician who will be directing the work of the paramedics, were introduced.

The $12,000 paramedic van, which will hold the radio equipment, medicines and medical paraphernalia was displayed.

The true start of the program came the day before, when a San Mateo man visiting the Holiday Inn suffered a heart attack. The paramedic van reached the scene within two minutes. The paramedic radioed in a "rhythm strip of the heart," to Dr. Carl Ludwig, chief of Kaiser Hospital's emergency room.

The doctor diagnosed the trouble as "coronary insufficiency." Acting under his instructions, the paramedic injected the proper fluid into the system. He was placed into a waiting ambulance which proceeded at ordinary speed to Kaiser. He now is hospitalized at Peninsula Hospital.

The men have had 500 hours of medical training, under the auspices of Stanford University Medical School, and will take 120 hours of annual training.

Stridebech worked with the paramedic team in Long Beach, where there are 1,000 calls a month.

In South San Francisco, the fire department has about 500 to 600 cases a year on resuscitator cases. The paramedics will respond to automobile and other accidents. Its case load is expected to grow to 1,000 to 1,200 a year, as its services become known. There is no charge for the service. The victim pays for the ambulance, and hospital services; but not for paramedic service.

The telephone number for paramedic service is the same as other South San Francisco emergency services.

Child Care Centers Gain Board Favor

By subtle degrees, the trustees of the San Mateo Community College District appear to be moving in the direction of giving the establishment of child care centers a high district priority.

On Wednesday evening, the board decided to have its administration create policy guidelines for the trustees to act on in the near future in this matter.

According to trustee Eleanor Nettle, "This will enable us to pin down our course. It should end all this confusion."

However, several speakers from the audience urged the board to make a public commitment in favor of the principle of such centers. The board would not.

Mrs. Nettle said the board members are individually in favor of the idea. Trustee

James Tormey told the audience at the College of San Mateo that, "If we weren't committed to it, we wouldn't waste any more time on it."

Chancellor Glenn Smith promised that the issue would be back on the board's agenda April 9.

Smith and his staff, particularly Dr. Clifford Denney, director of planning, presented a detailed report Wednesday on the child care problem. In the report, it was stated that the cost of building three centers on the district's three campuses would cost nearly $197,000. In addition, to operate programs at the three locations would cost over $171,000 per year.

It was emphasized that those figures represent the highest estimates available. They would enable the district to create a first-rate child care operation, Denney said.

CAUSE FOR CELEBRATION

Student musicians from Fernando Rivera Intermediate School in Daly City celebrate their outstanding performance at the annual C.M.E.A. Solo and Ensemble Festival held recently, at Serramonte High School. The musicians achieved two "good" ratings, seven "excellent" ratings, six "superior" ratings and one "command performance" rating. The "command performance" rating was awarded to Trippy Sliter for a tuba solo. Soloists who received a rating of "superior" were Curtis Dennison baritone sax and flute; and Leslie McNeil flute. Groups to also receive a "superior" rating were: clarinet quintet, sax quartet and woodwind quartet. The ensembles were trained by Mrs. Kem Martinez, band director at Fernando Rivera Intermediate School.

Pair Arrested For Assault

Two juveniles — from South San Francisco and Burlingame — have been released to their parents after, Foster City police report, they assaulted, beat and kicked a recreation center supervisor last weekend.

Both were charged with assault with a deadly weapon in the kicking of the supervisor and with aggravated assault.

According to police, four juveniles entered the recreation center late Friday evening and were noticed by James Edward Drotteff, 20, on duty, as not being residents.

When he informed them that the center was open only to residents, they became belligerent, police said, and Drotteff called police.

When the four realized he had called police, they surrounded Drotteff, police report, and attacked him, knocking him down, and kicking the recreation leader.

Other Foster City juveniles rushed to aid Drotteff and separated the others from him, police said.

Governale Warns on Regional Government

San Bruno's outgoing mayor, Councilman Tony Governale Monday night warned that regional government has begun to replace home rule.

Governale said regional government appears inevitable, so cities better get involved in the creation of that regionalism or the people they serve will be left out in the cold.

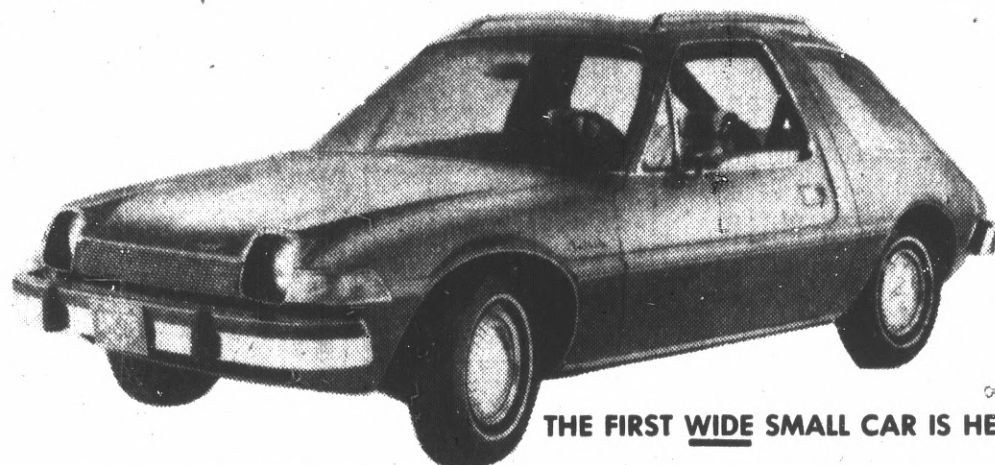

"I've spent almost four years on the council dealing with this," said Governale. "If we don't participate strongly in its creation — they'll come in anyway — we'll lose vital input."

Governale pointed out that cities already have begun to lose control in many decision-making areas. He cited the public employee issue of right to strike as outlined in Senate Bill 275 as an example.

"It's because the cities don't have the wherewithal to deal with it," said Governale.

He predicted that within two years, "If not sooner," there will be a Bay Area Regional Government. "I think it's coming. I don't think it can be stopped," he said. "They will begin doing your planning at the local level — with you having little power at the local level."
